Sugaring is Very Sweet

Today I headed to Howick, to visit Sirocco Hair & Beauty, to try out an alternative to waxing called sugaring. Sugaring involves applying a warm mix of natural ingredients like manuka honey, aloe vera, sugar, water and kiwifruit nectar.

The owner Cari was very welcoming and the salon was clean and comfortable. One thing that I have found in the past is that you want a waxer that is proficient in their job. One thing you don't want is someone to be is timid and shy about pulling out your hair. You want efficient, professional and considerate staff, which at Sirocco are criteria they definitely met.

First of all, it was so smoothly performed that I almost fell asleep getting this treatment done! Now that is a first - falling asleep while getting waxed is not something I can normally imagine happening.

The honey mix is warm and soothing and smells nice with no residue left on your skin or clothes.

Surprisingly I found this to be a lot less painful than waxing. I was told this is because the sugar gel adheres to the hair and not to the skin, which keeps the pain to a minimum. I also like the idea of using all natural ingredients, as I never have and never will use one of those yucky chemical removal creams.

Another highlight with sugaring is that it is hypo allergenic, so if the wax bothers you then this may be a solution.

Sugaring originally comes from Egypt where it started as one of the original hair removal systems made of sugar, lemon and water. The brand used at Sirocco is called Pharo and is made here in New Zealand.

I got my bikini line and legs done and the next day I jumped out of the shower to investigate the results. The results were smooth and polished with absolutely no little fuzzy bits left over. Sirocco also shaped up my eyebrows so I am looking and feeling great! I am interested to see if I end up with less ingrown hairs, as I always find this to be a problem with traditional waxing.

I would highly recommend this treatment, it is less painful than waxing, I'm feeling smooth all over, it left no residue on my skin, and the service was friendly and professional.

If you're looking for a great alternative to waxing, look no further slynkey girls!
